

Once upon a time there lived a horrible mean farmer named The Rock. He lived alone in a tiny little farm house that was hidden away from everything except one beautiful mansion that no one lived in. He didn't have any friends because he was so mean but he did have a lot of animals like cows, sheep, chickens and horses.

He lived here for many years with no contact with anyone until one day he noticed a beautiful lady named Areial looking through the windows of the mansion next door. He wasn't very happy about it because he didn't like people at all and didn't want anyone to move in there as he liked being alone.

So, he had an idea he decided to sneak into the mansion and pretend to be a ghost to try scare the beautiful Areial away so she wouldn't buy the mansion. He tried everything, he would make noises and move things around the house in front of her and even throw thing in her direction to try scare her and when it almost worked and she walked outside to leave The Rocks animals knew what he was doing and yelled out to her. They were very happy to see another person around and wanted her to stay. The beautiful Areial heard the animals yelling out to her and she walked over to see what they wanted. They told her what the mean farmer was up to and to not be scared. She decided to buy the mansion and moved in the next day.

The mean farmer was not happy about this at all until Areial started making him treats and food and leaving them on his door step.

One morning she left him a huge plate of bacon and eggs and it made The Rock very happy that he decided to go over to the Mansion and thank the beautiful lady for the breakfast she had made him.

They spent the whole day talking and then the next day too and then the next and the next and then they eventually fell in love and got married. The mean Farmer was no longer mean anymore and treated his animals with their favorite food beef jerky for telling the beautiful Areial what he was up to so she didn't run away.

The Rock then moved into the mansion with the beautiful Areial and they lived happily ever after.

